

New York, Dec. 17.
COLOMBIA.

By the brig Bogota, which arrived late on Friday night from Carthage, we have received a file of Bogota papers to the 26th of October, and a proclamation of Bolivar, dated at Guayaquil, a translation of which we annex, from which it will be seen that he has reached Colombia. We also subjoin a Proclamation of the Secretary of State of Colombia, dated at Bogota the 6th of November, announcing his approach to that Capitol, which he was to enter on the 14th November. A letter from Carthage mentions that he restored tranquility in all the towns through which he passed.

Proclamation of his Excellency the Liberator, on his arrival on the Coast of Colombia.

Colombians! the sound of your discord has reached my ear in the capital of Peru, and I have come to bring you the olive branch. Accept it as the ark of your safety. What? has Colombia no longer any enemies? Are there no more Spaniards in the world? And even if the whole world should be our ally, we ought to remain submissive and obedient to the laws and restrained by the force of our love.

I offer you anew my services—the services of a brother. I have not wished to know who is in fault, and I have never lost sight of the fact that you are my brothers by blood, and my companions in arms. I bring you a common kiss [in osculo commun] and two arms to press you to my bosom. Let them then approach it, even to the depth of my heart, Granadians and Venezuelans, the just and unjust; every one of the liberating army, every citizen of the great Republic.

In your disputes one alone has been guilty—I am he. I did not return in time: two friendly Republics, sisters of our victories, have detained me, loading me with unbounded gratitude and immortal rewards. I present myself as the victim of your sacrifice; discharge your blows upon my head, they will be pleasant to me, if they appease your anger [encinos].

Colombians! I read the soil of our country: let then the cause of your disunion cease. Let there be no longer Venezuelans, no longer Granadians, no longer Colombians; let us all be COLOMBIANS, or death will overwhelm the delinquents who create ANARCHY.

BOLIVAR.

Guayaquil, Sept. 13, 1826.

REPUBLIC OF COLOMBIA.

Office of Secretary of State and of Foreign Relations.

Bogota, 6th Nov. 1826.

The immense debt that Colombia owes to the Liberator, and her esteem for him, founded on the benefits he has conferred on her, induces her to regard his return to our territory as a fortunate occurrence to the Republic. You are a witness of the extacy with which the people at all points are preparing for this event, and hence I am induced to suppose it will be satisfactory to be notified, that the President Liberator will arrive here on the 14th instant.

His public life has been a model of devotion to his country. His sacrifices and his efforts, have always been alike applicable and effective; and now scarcely does he touch the soil of Colombia, when by his influence and persuasion he has succeeded in reclaiming from their errors several municipalities, and is completely restoring constitutional order in the departments of the Equator, Guayaquil, and Azuay. There are strong reasons for believing that his voice will produce similar effects in Venezuela, which regrets already its inconsiderate resolution; and it is a high gratification for me to be able to give this proof of the union which will henceforth strengthen Colombia, and of the realization of the wishes of the executive.

I am with perfect respect, &c.

JOSEPH R. REVENGA.

Office of the Mercantile Adv.

COLOMBIA.

We are favored with a Bogota paper of the 26th of October, which contains a despatch to the Government from the Intendant of Ecuador, with a copy of the proceedings at Quito, relative to the investment of Bolivar with the Dictatorship, and expressing the hope that all the departments may be unanimous in the adoption of similar measures.

The reply of the Secretary of State, is dated Oct. 8th. He states that he is directed to answer that the Executive of Colombia recognizes an act in contradiction to the political code which it received from the Colombian people to carry into execution and cause to be respected; and that so long as the individual exercising it is at the head of the government, and one single town adheres to the Constitution, he excellency the Vice President will support it with constancy, and sacrifice his fortune and life in its defence.

Another paragraph of the answer says, "To all the reasons alleged in the acts of Guayaquil, &c. I must add on the part of the government this, that the Liberator President has no necessity for a Dictatorship, which of itself is sufficient to make every free man shudder, and from the illegal, tumultuous and improper way in which it was decreed, becomes absolutely detestable. The Liberator President, as chief magistrate, can assume the Government of the Republic, and in the constitution will find all the powers necessary to save it from the dangers both domestic and foreign, of which so lively and exaggerated a picture has been drawn."

The West India Trade.—The official correspondence relative to the trade of the U. States with the British West India islands, has been communicated to Congress.—It consists:

1. Of a letter from Mr. Clay, the American Secretary of State, to Mr. Gallatin, the American minister at London, instructing Mr. Gallatin to resume negotiations, which had been suspended in 1824, relative to the British colonial trade.

2. A letter from Albert Gallatin to George Canning, the British Secretary of State, offering to open negotiations.

3. From George Canning to Albert Gallatin, in which the negotiation is declined. This letter has something of the insolent air about it, which used to characterize the correspondence of George Canning, with the American Government relative to its non-intercourse policy, prior to the late war.—John Bull gives President Adams rather a severe caning. His Secretary of State in a letter dated the 11th of Sept. last, to Albert Gallatin, says:

"But the British Government further owes to the spirit of frankness which it wishes to cultivate in all its relations with the United States, to declare, that, after having been compelled to apply to any country, the interdiction prescribed by the act of 1823, the British Government cannot hold itself bound to remove the interdiction, as a matter of course, whenever it may happen to suit the convenience of the foreign Government to reconsider the measures by which the application of that interdiction was occasioned."

"It is not made matter of complaint, by the British Government, that the U. States have declined conditions, which other nations have thought worthy of their acceptance."

"It is on the other hand, not the fault of the British Government, if the U. States have suffered the time to pass by, at which it might have been an object of greater importance to this country to induce the U. S. to come into their proposals."

"The U. States exercised, upon this point, a free judgment; and they can, on their part, have no reason to complain that Great Britain, after allowing ample time for maturing that judgment, is contented to abide the result of their decision."

4. A letter from Albert Gallatin, to George Canning.

5. A letter from C. R. Vaughan, the British Ambassador at Washington to H. Clay.

6. A letter from H. Clay to C. R. Vaughan.

7. A letter from C. R. Vaughan to H. Clay.

8. A letter from H. Clay to Albert Gallatin.

This correspondence is spun out to too great a length for a weekly paper—the last letter of Secretary Clay is of itself nearly twice the bulk of the President's message. As the subject is important, we present to the reader a brief view of it as it appears from the documents submitted to Congress.—This trade has been a subject of negotiation at different times since the year 1794. In 1815 they negotiated—but not being able to come to any agreement, in regard to the British West India trade, it was left to the two countries to regulate this subject by their respective laws. The two governments again unsuccessfully negotiated in 1817, and in 1818, and 1819, and finally in 1824. The point on which the parties could not agree, was, that the United States insisted that American produce should be admitted into the British colonial ports, upon the same terms as similar produce received from any where else; that is, either from a British possession or any foreign country.

The parties separated amicably, and with a perfect understanding, that the negotiation should be resumed and brought to a close at a future day.—Since then the Parliament of Great Britain, in July 1825, passed an act, which directs that after the first day of December, 1826, the British West India ports should be closed against the vessels of the U. States, provided the government of the U. States did not abolish a duty which is imposed on British vessels in the ports of the United States.

The National Gazette suggests that, "When intelligence of the disorders in Colombia, and the new plans of Bolivar, reaches Mexico, it may have the effect of dissolving the Congress of Tacubaya. While the Governments to which the members respectively belong, are declared to be in a state of dissolution, or undergoing fundamental anti-republican changes, we know not with what degree or sense of due authority and ultimate advantage, any compacts or arrangements can be made by that body."

There is some point in these remarks; but, as the Congress is to assemble to deliberate on external concerns, we are not certain that any change in the internal organization of any one of the Governments of South America would change its relation to the others. We should not consider the Government of the United States towards other Powers to be at all altered by any alteration whatever of its Constitution, nor even by a Civil War.

Revolutionary Caucus.—The Boston Gazette says, "of the patriotic citizens of Boston who met in caucus at the north end, in 1774 & '75, according to a list lately given in the City Record, consisting of sixty in number, we believe Perez Morton, Esq. the present Attorney General of this State, is the only one who survives. It was a respectable company. Among the names are the following:—Samuel Adams, Joseph Warren, John Adams, Nathaniel Appleton, John Winthrop, Paul Revere, Moses Grant, James Swan, Thomas Tileston, James E. Condy, Edward Proctor."

We mentioned, last year, about this time, that 33,000 free letters had been mailed at the Post Office in this City within one week. This year, within the week including Tuesday last, we learn that 44,000 letters were mailed.

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT.

On Thursday afternoon last, Joseph Hough, Esq. (Attorney) of this village, was accidentally killed on the Broad Mountain, in the neighbourhood of Mauch Chunk. The particulars we learn are as follows:—Mr. Hough, in company with some of his friends were in pursuit of Deer—while the dogs were in chase of one, another bounded up near him, and he cried out "a Buck!" at this instant a lad of about 15 years of age, who was immediately in Mr. Hough's rear, hastily drew his rifle from his shoulder—and from some unknown cause it went off—and the ball as well as the powder and wadding entered the back part of his head and blew it literally to pieces. He expired instantly. At the time he received the contents of the loaded rifle he was standing with one of his arms folded across his breast, and so sudden and instantaneous was his dissolution that he never moved it.

Unparalleled fecundity.—Dr. O. F. Pandock, a respectable physician of Fort Covington, Franklin county, gives in the Franklin Telegraph, an account of an extraordinary birth of five children at one time from the same mother—three daughters and two sons. Four of them were born alive, but lived only a short time. The birth was premature by about three months; but they were perfectly formed and well shaped. The average weights were about two pounds, and there was not much difference in their size. Their parents lately emigrated from Ireland and arrived in this country in August last. This is rendered more remarkable by the fact that the mother of these five, was delivered of two children on the 20th of last February—making in the whole seven children in less than nine months. These last were born on the 25th Nov. 1826.

It is stated that each parish in London, claims the privilege of collecting the ashes and cinders from all the houses, & applies the proceeds to the relief of the poor. A single parish, St. Mary-le-bone, sold the privilege of the parish in these articles to the dustmen in a single year, for upwards of 2 thousand pounds. The dustmen take the ashes and cinders to a yard, sift them, and sell the dust to brickmakers to be mixed with clay, and the cinders to burn bricks.

Accidents.—The journal of Capt. Parry's third voyage states, that at Port Brown, Lieutenant Foster kept up a conversation with his aide, and at a distance of 600 feet, which is a fourth of a mile, and two tenths Pennsylvania Legislature.

Harrisburg, Dec. 14.

The two houses met to-day, in the hall of representatives, to cast up the returns of the election for governor, and publish the result. Mr. Shulze received 72,710 votes, Mr. John Sergeant 1175; and there were 1174 scattering.

Harrisburg, Dec. 19.

In the house of representatives, yesterday, Mr. Denny's resolution, to appoint a chaplain to that house, was agreed to. The duties will be performed by the different clergymen of the borough in succession, who have agreed to give their services gratuitously.

Yesterday, in the senate, the bill providing for the publication of the laws, in certain newspapers, was negatived on second reading, by a vote of 12 to 17.

Harr. Int.

In the H. of R. Dec. 14, Mr. Sherry presented a petition from Samuel Register Smith, praying the State to purchase a patent right from him. Referred to the committee of ways and means.

Dec. 16. Mr. Harrison, from the committee on ways and means, reported a resolution unfavorable to the petition of Samuel R. Smith, which was adopted.

The inauguration of Gov. Shulze, for the second time, took place this day. He was attended to the capitol by the heads of the departments, and a committee composed of the following gentlemen: Messrs. Ogle, Garber, Kitchen, Irwin, Boyd and Boyer, from the two houses, and received in the representative chamber, where both branches of the legislature had assembled to witness the ceremony, by the speaker of the senate, who administered the usual oaths. After which the governor delivered the following address:

Fellow Citizens,—About to enter on another period of administration of the government, I avail myself of the opportunity which the occasion affords, to express the gratitude I feel for the new manifestation of the confidence with which my fellow-citizens have been pleased to honor me. To be called to the chief magistracy by the freemen of Pennsylvania, even with claims sustained by a majority of voices, is the proudest honor that can be conferred on the most worthy of her sons—but the restoration, by common consent, of the high trust which I had surrendered, adds to the consciousness of having used my best endeavors to execute it faithfully, an assurance that those by whom it was confided, have received my imperfect attempts to redeem the pledge given on my part, with favor and indulgence. Further than this, an honest ambition cannot entertain a wish.

I again enter on my charge, with unforgotten diffidence. A knowledge of its responsibilities, and of the unusual arduousness of its duties, is sufficient to convince me, that after I shall have exerted my best energies to accomplish the object set before me, I shall still have much to owe to the indulgence of the public. A rapid development of resources, of which the importance and extent were, until lately, neither appreciated nor understood, has hurried us forward to a period when the measures of the government must necessarily take a wider range than those of ordinary legislation. Our mountains and waste lands, which seemed to be doomed to everlasting barrenness, are found to teem with inexhaustible wealth, and to constitute not the fairest, certainly the richest, portion of our territory. To the east, and to the north, anthracite and iron; to the west, and to the south, iron, coal, glass and salt, in their various uses and applications to manufactures and the arts, offer to industry and enterprise, the rich results of profitable labor, and an advantageous investment of capital. The benefits that flow directly from these sources, as well as from the increased extent and activity of external commerce, are already in a state of incipient enjoyment; and experience of the past irresistibly leads to the anticipation of an almost boundless prosperity, with which it has pleased the supreme ruler of the universe, in an especial manner, to bless the people of this commonwealth. It will be the business of the government to promote these important interests, by improving the means of transportation, and opening a market to the remotest parts of the state.

Fellow citizens, we have abundant cause of congratulation and gratitude for the many blessings we enjoy, both as an integral part of the nation, and as a distinct community. Our country appears in the lap of plenty and of peace. Disease, which heretofore afflicted the land, has almost vanished, and has given place to all the blessings of health. Credit is re-established, the embarrassment consequent to an extraordinary extension and sudden retrenchment of the currency removed, and a period at length put to the distressing sacrifice of property and individual suffering, which these causes had produced; economy in public and private expenditure is generally practised, and the body politic by the bounty of Heaven restored to its pristine health. A wise and judicious tariff has given increased activity to our infant manufactures, which already begin to rival the fabrics of the old world. The asperity of feeling, which of late arrayed political parties against each other, in all the bitterness of strife, has given place to a moderate but salutary jealousy, which makes them faithful and vigilant guardians of the constitution and the public liberty; and turns party spirit, thus restrained to its legitimate object, into a blessing. The talents of many of our ablest and scientific men meet with encouragement and employment in the service of the public, and a certainty that much has been done that was deemed impracticable, invigorates exertion for what remains. Our schools and colleges, aided by the liberality of an enlightened legislature, flourish with an increased usefulness, and the spirit of experiment and free enquiry is abroad. With a knowledge of the manifold advantages we enjoy, let us continue to be thankful to the disposer of all good, and manifest our gratitude by an assiduous cultivation of the principles of virtue and religion. Let us not forget, that the public has much to expect from us.

The political principles on which the government has been administered, during the period just elapsed, are those on which I shall act in time to come; and with the more confidence, as they have received the sanction of the freemen of Pennsylvania. They are too generally known to require a particular exposition here. Errors in the administration of the government may undoubtedly be committed, but I will take leave to say, with an honest boldness, that they never have, nor shall they in future be, the errors of the heart. At the time appointed in the constitution, my office shall be returned to those who gave it, unstained by a single wilful act of misgovernment. For every thing beyond this, I shall rest, with unshaken confidence, on the tried favor and indulgence of my fellow citizens.

J. ANDW. SHULZE.

REVOLUTION IN ST. DOMINGO.

The editor of the New York National Advocate has received, by the arrival of the Ann Maria, from Falmouth, (Jamaica) papers to the 22d November, inclusive; and we are indebted to him for a ship containing the following extract from the Jamaica Journal of the 19th ult.

A Revolution has taken place in St. Domingo, in consequence of the coercive measures resorted to for the purpose of enforcing their feeble labours to cultivate the soil for their own maintenance, and towards the support of the government. Mr. Lister, the Vice Consul at St. Domingo, has arrived in this island in an American vessel from Havil and was landed in the neighbourhood of Port Antonio: thence he sent on despatches to the Governor and Admiral, with which he was entrusted, and the Harlequin proceeds this morning for Port au Prince to afford protection to the British subjects resident there. Capt. Elliott, of the vessel, was at a private party in Spanish town on Thursday evening, and received orders to join his ship that night. Other vessels of war are to be sent up to St. Domingo. Various reports are in circulation upon this subject, and we forbear mentioning them till more authentic particulars reach us.

In the Legislature of Virginia, leave has been granted, after debate, to bring a bill before the house, the sense of the French Masses on the subject of calling a Convention. The division upon it was, by Yeas and Nays, 163 to 98.

It is supposed that the Trade to New Brunswick and other parts on the American Continent left open by the British Orders in Council, will be closed by an act of Congress as a measure of retaliation.

The Greeks.—We are much gratified to learn from the Philadelphia papers, that the collection of a supply of provisions for the Greeks is progressing very rapidly in that city. A number of merchants and other gentlemen have pledged themselves to make liberal donations of flour, and it is expected that a cargo of fifteen hundred barrels will be made up very soon. Other kinds of provisions are contributed. A full number of the Philadelphia Free Press, containing the list of our city's contributions, is sent post.
